

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

GATHERED BY GLOBE-REPUBLIC REPORTERS.

An Amusing Runaway, in which one horse completely demolishes two sleighs—Charles H. Berry, the Pension Agent, Acquitted and Returns to Springfield—Interesting Items from Lagonda—Cases in Court.

The most amusing runaway that has taken place for some time happened yesterday afternoon. It is well known that Randolph Coleman, E. Q., is a great lover of fine sleighs and that he owns a fine five-year-old that doesn't often permit any other horse to pass him. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Coleman had the animal hitched to a sleigh and was soon enjoying the "beautiful snow." Coming west on High street Mr. Coleman decided to turn down Foster street to Main, but the horse wouldn't have it this way, and when the rein was drawn the animal turned in the opposite direction very suddenly. This movement had the effect of overturning the sleigh and throwing the driver out. A few well-directed blows from the animal's hind legs smashed the front part of the sleigh and separated the shafts from the body. Highly gratified with the result of his labors thus far the animal started west on High street at a gallop which thoroughly maintains its reputation as a "flier." With this remarkable degree of tenacity peculiar to young men who are running for office, Mr. Coleman held on to the reins, and was dragged along on the cold, cruel snow, using his legs for sleigh runners. In front of the seminary he managed to get upon his feet, but it was only for a moment, when down he went again. In front of the Catholic church Mr. Coleman, who was by this time thoroughly disgusted with acting the part of a sleigh, got another footing, which proved to be more substantial. The horse gave a sudden jerk, and slipping, fell on his head, turning a complete somersault. Mr. Coleman was by this time a little disfigured, but still in the ring, and managed to get on to the horse's head. This stopped the horse's run, and thus the first chapter ended.

The second chapter introduces another hero in the person of Mr. Joe Miller, another rising young lawyer and politician. Mr. Miller has been trying to purchase this same horse from Mr. Coleman for some time. When he heard of the latter's little escapade, he saw at once that he had a chance to buy. He laughed heartily at Mr. Coleman, and going to a livery stable, hired a fine sleigh, to which he hitched the animal and started off, in company with a young martyr named George Kirk. They drove out West Main street, and in front of Mr. Coleman's home the animal again took fright and started off. In a moment another sleigh was demolished and the two occupants lying in the middle of the street. Mr. Miller returned to the office with his clothing badly cut up, and he says Mr. Coleman can keep that horse.

Charles H. Berry Acquitted. For several days past the case of Charles H. Berry, the pension agent, who was arrested and indicted for obtaining illegal pension fees, has been in progress in the United States Court at Cincinnati. Of the eighteen counts against him all but three were rejected at the beginning of the trial. E. S. Wallace, Esq., of this city, appeared as counsel for Mr. Berry, and the result is quite a "feather in his cap." The taking of testimony concluded about three o'clock yesterday afternoon and a half hour was allowed each side for argument. At the end of this time the case was given to the jury, and after deliberating for about a half hour, a verdict of acquittal was rendered. Mr. Berry received the congratulations of his friends present, and returned to the city at midnight.

WE DO AND WE DON'T.

The plain facts are what interest the public. Untruthful representations as to quality of goods is commercial suicide. Our ever-increasing patronage is due in an equal degree to what we do and what we don't do. For example: We DO sell the very best shoes for the money in all grades that can be produced by the leading manufacturers. We DO NOT handle cheap auction goods, made by shoddy manufacturers to deceive the "cheap" trade. We DO sell at lower prices, quality considered, than any other establishment in the city. We DO NOT attempt to palm off upon the unsuspecting customer a worthless shoe made of rejected split leather with paper soles and bogus counters, designed to imitate legitimate goods. We DO sell the first quality of rubbers and overshoes, and the first quality only. We DO NOT buy or sell either second or third quality of rubbers and overshoes, these two grades being burnt and damaged in manufacture, and therefore of little or no value for service. We DO guarantee every statement made to a customer concerning quality, style and price of goods. We DO NOT misrepresent goods, nor attempt to deceive and defraud purchasers. In short, we do a strictly honest business in honest goods, and do not seek to gull such dupes as can neither detect nor appreciate the difference between shoddy and legitimate dealers.

Cases in Court.

Judge Goode was expected at home again last night from a brief trip East, and will hold court Monday. The case of the Champaign county against the Clark county infirmaries directors, set for that day, has been again continued by plaintiff's desire. It is to recover for the keeping of one Albert Lawson, who died not long ago.

Tuesday morning the case of Elizabeth B. Neal, administratrix of Geo. Neal, deceased, against the C. C. C. & L. railway company, comes up for hearing. Suit is for $10,000 damages for the killing of plaintiff's husband, which occurred three years ago at the Yellow Springs street railroad crossing, by one of defendant's trains striking the wagon in which he was driving. It will be remembered he died in the wagon in which he was being taken to the hospital.

Late Friday afternoon a little boy on the farm owned by Mr. Michael Minahan, north of town, caught fire and was soon a heap of ashes. A family named Davis, consisting of father, mother, and four or five children, occupied the little cabin, and when it burned they were left homeless. The family is very poor and have been living mostly off the charity of neighbors for some time. When the hut burned Mr. Davis was away from home, and the mother and children went to the nearest house, which is occupied by a man named O'Donnell, but they were refused admission, and had to find shelter elsewhere. The neighbors, when they heard of the treatment received by the Davis family at the hands of O'Donnell, were very indignant, and for a time it looked as if something more serious would result.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Jewett wish to extend their thanks to their many friends for their kind sympathy shown them in their sad affliction in the death of their daughter Minnie, and to her schoolmates and to her teacher.

Hon. A. H. Dunlap and Mr. Harry D. Blaisdell of Naubia, N. H., brother and nephew of Mrs. S. A. Lowrey, of South Market street, are spending a few days with her on their way to California.

The Bushnell Guards, Co. A, Ninth Battalion, was inspected at their army night by Major Henry Harper, commanding battalion, accompanied by Col. W. J. White, of Seventh Regiment, and the inspection was a creditable one to the organization. After inspection Col. W. J. White made a brief speech, reciting many incidents of the valor and loyalty of the colored soldier and citizen during the late civil war. He stated that it was a shame that to good a company as the Bushnell Guards was compelled to remain in such a poor, dark and damp army; the lacking having caused the damage of several arms and other property. Col. White and Major Harper think, and recommend that a new army be provided for the company. They were well pleased with the drilling. Capt. Radd has a drill corps of which he may well be proud. Col. White says he has had his eye on the Ninth Battalion for several years, and should be called to the scene of action he would not want a better organization to accompany him than the Ninth Battalion.

Yesterday afternoon, about 6 o'clock, an accident happened at the Linden avenue railroad crossing of the I. B. & W. road, which resulted in the complete destruction of a buggy belonging to Mrs. Julia Burnett. A colored man, whose name could not be learned, was driving the horse. He had a smart around his head, over his ears, and did not bear the trail approaching. As he reached the middle of the track the engine struck the buggy and knocked it into splinters. The horse became frightened and started to run off. Fortunately, the driver held to the reins, and was dragged along for some distance, but escaped uninjured.

Ammonia in Baking Powders. Among the recent discoveries in science and chemistry, none is more important than the use to which common ammonia can be properly put as a leavening agent, and which indicates that this familiar salt is hereafter to perform an active part in the preparation of our daily food.

The carbonate of ammonia is an exceedingly volatile substance. Place a small portion of it upon a knife and hold over a flame, and it will almost immediately be entirely developed into gas and pass off into the air. The gas thus formed is a simple composition of nitrogen and hydrogen. No residue is left from the ammonia. This gives it its superiority as a leavening power over soda and cream of tartar used alone, and has indeed its use as a supplement to these articles. A small quantity of ammonia in the dough is effective in producing bread that will be lighter, sweeter and more wholesome than that given by any other leavening agent. When it is acted upon by the heat of baking, the leavening gas that raises the dough is absorbed. In this act it uses itself up, as it were; the ammonia is entirely destroyed, leaving no trace or residue whatever. The light, fluffy, flaky appearance, so desirable in biscuits, etc., and so sought after by preferential cooks, is said to be imparted to them only by the use of this agent.

The bakers and baking powder manufacturers producing the finest goods have been quick to avail themselves of this useful discovery, and the hand-made, and best bread and cake are now largely risen by the aid of ammonia, combined of course with other leavening material.

Ammonia is one of the best known of products of the laboratory. It is so common to be justly claimed for it, the application of its properties to the purpose of cooking remains in giving us lighter and more wholesome bread, biscuits, and cake, it will prove a boon to domestic humanity, and will speedily force itself upon general use in the new field to which science has assigned it.—Scientific American.

The baggage-car of the C. C. C. & L. night express dropped a wheel yesterday morning just above Lockland, and was thrown from the track, making a wreck, owing to which a transfer at that point became necessary for all passenger trains on that road. As a consequence the morning mail and papers were two hours late or more. It is not known that anybody was hurt by the accident.
